This Week in Fourth Grade

math

In math this week, students are completing 2-digit by 2-digit multiplication and division. Please continue to practice basic multiplication and division facts at home.

Next week....DECIMALS!

Contest

The New Hanover Soil & Water Conservation District is holding a Poster, Essay & Speech Contest.

This year's them is "Soil & Water....Your's for life!"

This theme should be conveyed in all entrees.

Poster contest is opened in grades 3-6.

Notebook Paper

We are on our last pack of notebook paper. Our class would really appreciate any wide-ruled notebook paper you could provide. Thanks!

reading

The reading wheel has slightly changed for the third nine weeks. Autobiography has been removed from the reading wheel as there are limited resources for this genre. Nonfiction has been broken down into two categories (000-599) and (600-999).

Again, students are required to complete a product for seven of the genres on the reader's wheel. When students have completed a quality product, it is presented or checked off and the student will color that part of their reading wheel. Taking an AR test does count as a reading wheel product, however, no more than 2 AR tests may serve this purpose. Please look at the website for more ideas on reading wheel products.

Our weekly reading story is "Marven of the Great North Woods" on page 416. Read a few pages of the story each night.

Planners

Planners should be signed each night. The title of the book your child is reading, the pages read during their 30 minutes of required reading, as well as a signature verifying your child has completed all homework should be included in the planner.

By including the book and pages, I can better monitor students' progress for their reading wheel products. Thanks so much!
