

Wendy's Day

One day Wendy was at the Florida train station when she met a new friend. They got on the train and started to eat Hershey kisses. Then the train broke down. When they were getting off they saw a pile of building blocks, and Wendy built a new train. When Wendy and her friend got on the new train they both stopped in Miami to see a basketball game and go to the beach. When they were at the beach they saw a shop that sold pins. She bought two. As she continued her road trip to Mexico, she stopped in Montgomery, Alabama and bought three more pins. After that she back tracked to Georgia and furthermore Connecticut. She had to build a new train in Hershey, Pennsylvania. Its name was Thomas. While she was in Kentucky she set the Lego building block world record for the biggest Lego working train. She proceeded through the United States buying pins until she reached her destination, Mexico. The lesson is that friendship can take you to great places if you are open to it.
