BLUE BETTA ACTIVITIES

LA ROCKS!!

This week in LA we will be....

~Completing a Reading Response over a novel that was read recently. Next week, we will do a timed (45 min.) writing prompt in class.

~Reading Warm-up Quiz is MONDAY.

~Reviewing NOUNS – people, places, things, ideas and Common and Proper Nouns.

~We will continue reading The Island and will have a listening quiz on Friday over Ch. 8-15.

~Spelling Tests are on Wednesdays. Homework is due on Tuesdays (A word list is provided on my website – just in case).

~We will also be going to the library on Friday. I request that the students bring a book to class every day and this is a great time to check something out! We will read silently in the library this Friday so every student must have a book to read.

*Don't forget to send in a picture of your child from a vacation for our "Reading Around the World" wall.

I am really enjoying teaching your child!

Social Studies

Students will discuss the tragedies of 9/11 and how our country became heroic and stronger after this historic event. They will write a paragraph about their hero and include a picture. Students will also label key parts of a world map such as the four hemispheres, the equator, the prime meridian, the four continents and four oceans. They will also use latitude and longitude to find locations on the Earth's surface. Please come by our halls and see how the students created themselves in three different situations using our district's motto this school year, "Dragons- Get Real: Live, Learn, Lead!" They are wonderful!!

~Proud to be your teacher~

SCIENCE

What a great first 2 weeks! We are finally wrapping up our Scientific Method section. This coming week we will be learning about the changes to earth's surface and what causes these changes. We will be doing an experiment which shows how water erodes our earth. Students will be learning new vocabulary, and it will be located in their journals. We do it this way, so they will not lose the vocabulary. We will always start a new unit or chapter with vocabulary. If your child wants to make flash cards at home, that is a great way to study. The chapter 1 Unit C test is scheduled for Friday, September 25th.
